SAY WHAT?! GWYNETH, DEBUNKED

She's at it again! Gwyneth Paltrow's latest health advice has docs across the country seeing red – here's the lowdown on her words of "wisdom"

1. RAW GOAT'S MILK CLEANSES ARE AMAZING!

GWYN SAYS: An eight-day raw goat's milk cleanse (that's more than a week of nothing but raw goat's milk, people!) helped her body fight off "heavy metals and parasites."

EXPERT SAYS: "Raw

milk contains harmful germs that can make you very sick and possibly kill you," says LA-based nutritionist Lisa DeFazio. At the very least, it will "just make you bloated and gassy." Hot.

IN TOUCH SAYS: Bloated and gassy? No wonder Chris Martin wanted to consciously uncouple.

I'M FRESH DOWN THERE!

2. YOUR PRIVATE PARTS NEED HELP!

GWYN SAYS: Steam-clean your hooha. Oh, and put little jade eggs inside it, too, to strengthen pelvic floor muscles.

EXPERT SAYS: Don't mess with your delicate areas. Such practices can make you more prone to infection and are just not necessary. "The vagina is a self-cleaning oven," says Tampa, Fla.-based ob-gyn Jill Hechtman, adding, "Jade is a porous product and could harbor harmful bacteria."

IN TOUCH SAYS: Like the eggs, Gwyneth's advice is not all it's cracked up to be.

3. LET BEES STING YOU ON PURPOSE!

GWYN SAYS: Apitherapy, the process of getting stung by bees, is an "incredible" way to "get rid of inflammation and scarring."

EXPERT SAYS: "Bee venom is not safe," insists NYC-based dermatologist Tabasum Mir. The risks? "Prolonged pain, numbness and severe anaphylactic reaction." Oh, and bee stings don't remedy inflammation – they produce it.

IN TOUCH SAYS: As part of our ongoing mission to help humanity, we are ready to supply the bees and watch Gwyn get stung over and over.

4. DITCH YOUR BRAS!

GWYN SAYS: In 2015, Gwyn published an essay on GOOP reviving the claim that there may be a link between cancer and wearing bras.

EXPERT SAYS: "There is no reliable proof," says Orlando, Fla.-based Dr. Jason Littleton. "We undermine research and discredit people with breast cancer when claims are put forth without valid evidence."

IN TOUCH SAYS: Support your girls – not ridiculous ideas that have already been discredited by the American Cancer Society.

OUCH!

But I'm a health guru!

I'd rather burn!

5. SUNSCREEN HURTS YOU!

GWYN SAYS: The sunscreen you've been wearing your whole life is harmful. Because, chemicals.

EXPERT SAYS: Some conventional sunscreens do contain harmful chemicals – but they still protect against skin cancer, says Dr. Littleton. “Choosing a clean and non-toxic sunscreen might prove to be better for you, but the jury is still out.”

IN TOUCH SAYS: Now it all makes sense. Gwyn has been out in the sun way too long!

GRANDMA PARTIES ON SPRING BREAK

Who says youth is wasted on the young? Doreen Grett, a grandma from Olathe, Colo., was vacationing in Cabo San Lucas, Mexico, when a bunch of college students on spring break showed up ready for a rager. So she joined the fun! “Shots with the girls,” Doreen captioned a Facebook photo, which her granddaughter Payton shared on Twitter – and it went viral. “We love your grandma so much,” one member of Doreen’s new squad told Payton. “She was so sweet. I’m so glad we met her.” Sounds like Doreen made it into the sorority!

Nick Cannon is out and Tyra Banks is in! The model, 43, is replacing the funnyguy, 36, as host on America's Got Talent after he quit following a blowup with his bosses. Tyra has hosting experience (her talk show ran from 2005 to 2011 and she's returning as host of America's Next Top Model), and some think she will be great. "Her personality is relatable," praises one. But not everyone is smiling (or smizing). "Won't be watching that show anymore," says another. HEINZ PICKS UP DON DRAPER'S AD CAMPAIGN

The ad campaign Mad Men's Don Draper pitched to Heinz was rejected by fictional execs in Season 6 of the show — but picked up by the real ones this year! A series of print and billboard ads (like the one in Times Square, above) that look nearly identical to Don's pitched prototypes debuted on March 13. (The only difference? His slogan, "Pass the HEINZ," is now in all caps.) "It's still very powerful, even if you don't understand the Mad Men connection," says Nicole Kulwicki, head of the Heinz brand. We always knew Don was ahead of his time!

BEYONCÉ FANS HAVE CONSPIRACY THEORY ABOUT THE TWINS

Beyoncé has given birth to another conspiracy theory. The pregnant-with-twins singer – who was accused of wearing a fake bump and hiring a surrogate to carry daughter Blue, 5 – posted an Instagram photo on March 14 in which she's wearing the same earrings she did in 2008's "If I Were a Boy" music video. Obviously, claim fans, it's a sign that the singer, 35, is expecting sons. They also think the large emerald she's rocking is a hint that her babies are due in May. They'll just have to wait and see (or get a life)!

No followers? No problem! A Japanese company called Family Romance (it's not as bad as it sounds...but it's still pretty bad) is offering a service called Real Appeal, which allows clients to hire companions so they can look more popular on social media. The service includes "unlimited pictures for social networking" and is recommended for those who "want to look like" they "have connections." As opposed to actually, you know, making friends. Dislike!

WILL LOOKS LIKE UNCLE PHIL!

Now, this is a story all about how Will Smith got flipped, turned upside down – and morphed into the late James Avery, who played beloved Uncle Phil on The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air. Will, 48, recently shared a video of himself bungee jumping in which he looks bald and shows off his graying beard. We guess it's true that all men eventually turn into their father (figures)!

victoryoftheweek 🐱 KATY WINS A HOUSE... AND ETERNAL DAMNATION?

Get thee to the nunnery! Katy Perry, who has been in a bizarre legal battle with Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of the Blessed Virgin Mary since 2015 over the purchase of their convent in LA's Los Feliz neighborhood, is one step closer to signing the deed. On March 14, a judge ruled that the holy women – who were so determined not to sell to a pop star with a "disgusting" lifestyle that they accused her of witchcraft – have no claim over the property. That means Katy's original deal to buy it from Archbishop José Gomez for $14.5 million can move forward as planned. She'd just better pray there's no divine intervention!

A NEW LIFE

"Tom wants to marry for a fourth time and have Suri in his life again because family has become a key priority for him since his mother's death," explains an insider.

HE'S SMITTEN

"Tom thinks Vanessa is stunning," says the insider.

Wife No. 4 for Tom & He Wants Suri Back!

Inside Tom Cruise's plan to say "I do" again and reunite with his little girl

It's been nearly five years since Katie Holmes blindsided Tom Cruise with divorce papers. Since then, he's been romantically linked to a slew of actresses, including Miranda Kerr, Sofia Boutella, Annabelle Wallis and Rebecca Ferguson. "But the truth is," says an insider, "he hasn't been involved in a serious relationship since he and Katie split in 2012."

But that's all changing. Tom, 54, has fallen for his new Mission: Impossible 6 co-star Vanessa Kirby. The 28-year-old English film and theater actress most recently drew critical praise for her performance as Princess Margaret in Netflix's award-winning series The Crown. "Tom flipped for her work and told the other Mission: Impossible producers that he had to have Vanessa for a crucial role in the franchise's sixth installment," an insider tells In Touch exclusively. "He wants to make her the next Mrs. Tom Cruise." He also has another plan: to reconnect with his and Katie's daughter, Suri, who turns 11 on April 18. "He hasn't seen Suri," says the insider, "in three-and-a-half years."

Tom instructed M:I6 producers bring in Vanessa for an audition. "They had instant chemistry, and she of course got the role," says the insider. "He's blown her away with his endless charm and energy. He thinks she's perfect to be his next wife."

This wouldn't be the first time someone was groomed to be Tom's love interest. A 2012 Vanity Fair story claimed that after Tom split with Penélope Cruz in early 2004, Scientology auditioned former Homeland actress Nazanin Boniadi, then a Scientologist, to date him in late 2004. And before he fell for and married Katie, the 2013 book Going Clear: Scientology, Hollywood & the Prison of Belief claimed that church leaders brought in a slew of unwitting stars, including Jessica Alba, Scarlett Johansson, Kate Bosworth and Lindsay Lohan, to try out for a nonexistent role in the M:I franchise when in fact they were being tested as possible love interests for Tom. (Scientology has denied all allegations.)

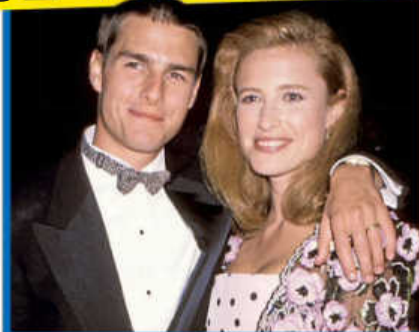

But marrying again isn't Tom's only endgame. "Having a family is," says the insider, "and that means bringing daughter Suri back into his life." Tom, who hasn't been publicly photographed with Suri since September 2013, has been plotting a reunion since the February death of his mother, Mary Lee South, who was 80. "He was so moved by his mother's funeral and realized how important family is that he made up his mind," adds the insider. "He doesn't want to lose out on any more time with his daughter."

Tom is excited for the future. "He's eager to wed and ramp up his relationship with Suri in a big way," says a second source. He hopes to be married again "by early next year," says the insider. "His role as a husband and father is of utmost importance to him. He can't wait to be a family man all over again." ■

TOGETHER AGAIN

If Tom wants to play a bigger role in Suri's life, "Nothing is going to stop him," warns the insider.

WILL THE FOURTH TIME BE THE CHARM?

TOM AND MIMI

Mimi Rogers, 61, introduced Tom to Scientology when they started dating in 1986. They married the next year (Emilio Estevez was the best man!), but it was over by late 1989.

TOM AND NICOLE

Nicole Kidman was just 23 when she married Days of Thunder co-star Tom on Christmas Eve in 1990. They raised two adopted kids together until Tom left her after a decade.

TOM AND KATIE

Tom and Katie, 38, got engaged in June 2005 after seven weeks of dating. The next year, they had daughter Suri and married in Italy. Katie stunned the world – and Tom – by filing for divorce in 2012.

EXCLUSIVE

Josh: A New to G

Anna Duggar had made up her mind. After being publicly humiliated and betrayed by her cheating husband, Josh Duggar, “She was planning to go ahead and finally divorce him in the months ahead,” says a source. But then she found out she’s pregnant. On March 17, Anna, 28, and Josh, 29, announced via the Duggar family website that they’re expecting a baby boy, due later this year. “Anna saw it as a sign that God had forgiven Josh so she should try to forgive him, too,” adds the source. “The divorce is off.”

Josh said he was the happiest man alive when Anna told him the news — and with good reason. He’s hoping this baby will get him back on TV, the source tells In Touch exclusively. TLC pulled his family’s show 19 Kids and Counting in 2015 after In Touch broke the news that Josh had repeatedly molested five underage girls (including four of his sisters) as a teen — and that his parents had tried to cover it up. Then the network banned Josh from the family’s spin-off, Counting On, because of pressure from advertisers. “He’s convinced public opinion will turn in his favor once people see how supportive he is to Anna leading up to the baby’s birth. He really thinks TLC and the advertisers will

COUNTING ON, INDEED

“Beauty comes from ashes and we cannot wait to see and kiss the face of this sweet new boy,” Josh and Anna (with their oldest son, Michael) wrote in a blog post on the Duggar family website.

Now Baby & a Bid et Back on TV

Anna's family is also extremely concerned. "They saw how humiliated she was by Josh's actions and fear that this baby is just a Band-Aid," says the source. As In Touch reported exclusively, Anna has been on the brink of divorcing Josh. But now she's staying with the man who betrayed her. Adds the source: "Anna's family is heartbroken and think she has been brainwashed." ■

Nick's Fiancée From Hell

Reality check! Bachelor Nick Viall sees the ugly side of his final pick, Vanessa Grimaldi

She was the last person anyone expected to see. On March 15, Bachelor winner Vanessa Grimaldi showed up at fiancé Nick Viall's Dancing With the Stars rehearsal. "It's really weird that she was there because significant others are rarely present during dance rehearsals," says a source. But Vanessa, who posted an Instagram photo with Nick and his gorgeous partner, Peta Murgatroyd, insisted on being there. "She was trying to keep tabs on Nick," adds the source. "She's a stage-five clinger."

And it's only going to get worse. Ever since Nick, 36, and Vanessa, 29, got engaged on the show's March 13 finale (which earned the lowest ratings in Bachelor history!), the special-needs teacher has turned into a total nightmare. "Vanessa has always been a lot to handle, but being on The Bachelor really kicked her emotions into overdrive," an insider tells In Touch, explaining that watching Nick date 29 other women on national TV — and discovering that he slept with at least one of them — left the Canadian beauty feeling jealous and insecure. "In Vanessa's mind, Nick still has a lot to prove. There is a lack of trust between them that she just can't seem to get over. It's making her act crazy — almost like a different person."

It's driving Nick nuts. "Vanessa has started to become overly concerned with his whereabouts. She makes Nick check in with her several times throughout the day if they are not together. She also demands that he post about her on social media frequently so everyone knows he is obsessed with her," says the insider. "Vanessa also makes Nick pick up the phone when she calls. If he doesn't, she flips out on him."

His stint on DWTS isn't helping matters. "She's always jumping to conclusions that he's flirting with people on set or lying about being at rehearsals," says the insider, adding that Nick insists she's overreacting. But Vanessa doesn't listen. "The fact

SHE'S IN CHARGE

"Vanessa has been aggressive and strong-willed from the second she was born," says an insider.

Josh: Amanda's Kids Call Me Dad that Nick has fallen short so many times in the past makes Vanessa wary," adds the insider. "She really thinks Nick should be doing anything and everything he can to make her feel at ease. She basically wants him to worship the ground she walks on."

That's never going to happen. "Nick can't take it anymore. He's starting to wonder if he made a huge mistake picking Vanessa," says a friend of Nick's, adding that the reality star isn't someone who likes to be told what to do. "He's really hoping Vanessa snaps out of this." And if she doesn't, adds the friend, "it's only a matter of time before Nick tells her he's had enough. ■

Bachelorette alum Josh Murray doesn't only miss his ex Amanda Stanton, he misses her two daughters, Kinsley, 4, and Charlie, 3. "It kills me [because] I love Kins and Char. They're both precious," Josh, 32, tells In Touch, insisting that he's trying to make things work with Amanda, 26. "We've been spending a lot of time together again. The kids are already calling me Daddy and everything." But Amanda's ex-husband, Nick Buonfiglio, tells In Touch it's all a lie. "I know for a fact that my kids have never once called him Daddy. They haven't even asked about him in months," says Nick, adding that Amanda has no plans to get back together with Josh. (The pair split in December after getting engaged on the Season 3 finale of Bachelor in Paradise last summer.) "He's clearly trying to use her to improve his image."

Scott Peterson:

Letters From Death Row

The man convicted of brutally murdering his pregnant wife reaches out from behind bars

Scott Peterson laughs a lot. Sitting alone in his 4-by-9-foot prison cell inside California's San Quentin State Prison, the man convicted of murdering his eight-months-pregnant wife, Laci Peterson, and their unborn son, Conner, in 2002 often watches one of his favorite shows: The Big Bang Theory. "[It] is great," Peterson writes in a letter. "Who doesn't like a good 'Bazinga'? Raj is the best. He gets the funniest lines of all. I always go for the underdog, so Raj is my guy."

He seems to be handling prison life just fine. In letters he sent to a California mother named Linda (who asked that In Touch not print her last name), the 44-year-old inmate not only shares his thoughts on the sitcom, but writes about riding fast motorcycles, his love for dogs, happy times with Laci and his leisurely life behind bars. "I often play basketball or run on the yard," Peterson, who maintains his innocence, notes in his letters, which have been exclusively obtained by In Touch. "Exercise has become very important to me.

I get depressed if I don't get outside and work up a sweat." Linda says she wrote Scott because she "was fascinated by his case and I had always wondered what it is like to be on death row. I was pretty sure he was guilty, but I wanted to know what was going through his mind."

Peterson shares much more with Linda. Survivor and MasterChef are must-see TV for him, and he admits he watches too many shows. "I need to get a life," writes the killer, without a trace of irony. "I would love an opportunity to work, but there are very few spots for that on

HORRIFIC CRIME

Peterson reported pregnant wife Laci, 27, missing on Dec. 24, 2002. Her body and her fetus' remains washed up on the shore of the San Francisco Bay four months later.

Linda,
Thanks for your kind note. Keeping the spirits of my family up, including my own, is a struggle, thoughtful words like yours mean a lot.
It has been many years since I first got to try and prove my innocence. I thought we had lost here I said. It is encouraging that people still realize the injustice. The direct appeal is coming up soon, but I want the habeas corpus to take place because that is where we get to investigate into who took my family from us.
Thanks again Linda. I

3/12/12
It is a pleasure to hear from you again, and thank you for making it easy for me to respond by including this stationery and the envelope.

Yes, we do get outside. There are several different programs on Death Row. Inmates are shuffled into them depending on many factors. I am happy to be a the best one in my opinion. I can get outside almost every day for a little over two hours. The time is spent on a roof-top "yard." I put yard in quotes because it is a fenced in area, there is no grass or anything. I am not complaining about it. This is Death Row, it is not a hotel. I fight against wrongly being here, but not against conditions that are a reality in such a place. I often play basketball or run on the yard. Exercise has become very important to me. I get depressed if I don't get outside and work up a sweat. I guess I'm institutionalized after so many years.

You also asked about television. Linda, I can have them. I watch more for too much. We got the local channels, no cable, so no Discovery or Learning Channel, but I am prepared to discuss, for hours on end, shows like Survivor, The Contender, and Shark Tank. I need to get a life, and read more.

I would love an opportunity to work, but there are very few spots for that on the row. The way that I was raised... I feel useless if I am not working.

May I ask about you enjoying being Linda? In the real world I myself everything to do with the outdoors. Daylight Savings Time was a wonderful thing to me because I like that extra hour of light in which we can be out having fun. There the row. The way that I was raised...I feel useless if I am not working." But something is conspicuously missing from his letters. "What's striking is the absence of darkness, given that he's on death row," says LA-based psychologist Dr. Julie Armstrong, who analyzed Scott's words for In Touch. "He's completely omitted this whole dark story, which we know to be true. This is a guy who doesn't feel any guilt, remorse or shame."

Peterson, who is among 700 inmates on death row at San Quentin, never complains about prison life. "That's consistent with a sociopath to not have deep feelings, so it's easy to maintain an upbeat attitude," says Dr. Armstrong, who has not treated Peterson. "And his self-confidence shows he doesn't feel like anything is his fault. He's very disconnected from the crime."

The few times he mentions his late wife, he makes their marriage sound idyllic. He talks about how easy it was to run their San Luis Obispo, Calif., restaurant, The Shack, and how much they enjoyed entertaining. "Laci and I loved having people over," he writes in the 2012 letters. "We were always happy when our pool was filled with friends, the grill was smoking, and the outside fridge was being emptied." He's just trying to make himself look good, says Armstrong. "It's this idealized version that he creates of who he thinks he is," she explains. "He's like, 'We were this happy suburban couple,' but this is a guy who was doing something behind his wife's back" — cheating on her with multiple women, including Amber Frey — "and ultimately killed her. Many people who have lost a loved one to violent crime hold it as a bruise in their heart because they feel the pain, but he's talking about her as if she's living in another state, not that she was brutally murdered, and certainly not at his hands."

Linda wasn't fooled. She tells In Touch she found their correspondence "chilling. I think his letters show he is clearly a pathological liar who thought he could get away with murdering his wife." ■

ER!

TOXIC UNION

"Kanye has not treated Kim well," says a family source. "They were fighting nonstop even before his breakdown."

Just two months before their third anniversary, Kim Kardashian is pulling the plug on her marriage to Kanye West

Kim Kardashian was in tears. "The guy came in, grabbed the phone from me, threw me on the bed, and I was like, 'This is it,'" she shared on the March 19 episode of Keeping Up With the Kardashians. She was reliving the moment-by-moment horror of being held at gunpoint by jewelry thieves inside her Paris hotel apartment last October. Though it made for powerful television, her husband, Kanye West, saw it as a powerful betrayal. "He'd told Kim her experience was personal and warned her, 'Do not exploit this for ratings,'" explains a family source. "But she did anyway. She went directly against his wishes and exposed every detail on camera. They had a huge fight, and he stormed out."

Kim didn't stop him. Four months after Kanye's mental breakdown, she's pulling the plug on their volatile marriage. "Kim is seeking a divorce," the family source tells In Touch exclusively. Though the relationship has been in shambles for a long, long time, "Kim didn't want to file while Kanye was having serious mental-health problems, because that obviously would have been very tough for him to deal with," says a Kim insider. But now, two months away from their third wedding anniversary, Kim is done and bracing to fight for her share of their combined $300 million fortune. "Kim knows the time is finally right for her to leave Kanye," says the Kim insider. "She's been talking to her lawyer, and divorce papers have been drawn up."

Kanye could fight for custody of Saint (left) and North. "I'm crazy about my kids," he once declared.

THEIR HOMES

Kim and Kanye bought a mansion in LA's Bel Air neighborhood for $9 million in 2013 (inset), then spent another two years gutting it. In 2014, they shelled out $20 million on a Hidden Hills, Calif., estate, plus $2.9 million for the house next door. But more than two years later, they're still renovating at a cost of $10 million and counting. "Kim's paying for it all," says a source.

THE RING

Kanye proposed with a 14-carat Lorraine Schwartz diamond ring worth $1.5 million.

ART COLLECTION

Kanye's art collection reportedly includes expensive pieces by Andy Warhol and Burton Morris (pictured) plus a collection of high-end design pieces, like his Frank Gehry-designed chairs, worth nearly $1 million combined.

TV AND GAME REVENUE

Kim earned $51 million in the first half of 2016, according to Forbes. More than $20 million of that came from her mobile game, while her KUWTK contract, appearance fees and sponsored social media posts – for which she commands up to $300,000 a pop – helped make up the rest.

MUSIC ROYALTIES

Though Kanye canceled his 2016 Life of Pablo tour amid his mental-health crisis, his music empire is still raking it in thanks to royalties from his old hits. Forbes reported he earned $30 million in the first half of 2014, which came on the heels of his Yeezus tour, which brought in $25 million.

There's nothing left to try to save. Though Kim, 36, and Kanye, 39, attempted to present a united front in the weeks following his psychiatric hold at UCLA Medical Center, they've lately been stepping out more and more on their own. In the first half of March alone, Kim was spotted out solo on March 2, 3, 6, 8, 10 and 11 while Kanye stepped out by himself on March 2 and 14. "Kim and Kanye," says the family source, "are living separate lives." The one time Kim and Kanye were seen out together — they hit Santa Monica restaurant Bandera on March 1 — "they looked pretty depressed," an eyewitness tells In Touch. Says a second eyewitness, "They didn't even talk to each other."

That kind of behavior is nothing new. "Kim and Kanye had many issues before the robbery and before Kanye's mental-health crisis," says the family source. "They've been fighting and distant for a long time." Kim's been struggling to make the right decision for months. "While she can't stand the idea of being humiliated by yet another divorce, she doesn't want to live in a broken marriage either," says the family source, "and she doesn't know how much longer she can hold on pretending."

Kim has vowed to make their two kids a priority as she prepares to move on. "She's considered going for sole custody of North, 3, and Saint, 15 months," says the Kim insider (see sidebar). But she just wants to make sure Kanye is OK and up to taking care of the kids. She would never deny him his children. Kim is, however, prepared to fight for her fortune. "When Kim married Kanye, he was the one with more money. Then the tables turned," says the family source. Kanye admitted to the world in a February 2016 Twitter rant that he was "53 million dollars in personal debt." Now Kim, adds the family source, "wants to make sure he doesn't take her money. She pumped millions into renovating their Hidden Hills [Calif.] home. You better believe she is going to want that house.”

He's not the man she thought he was. "The robbery hit her hard," says the Kim insider. "When Kim needed Kanye the most, he basically went MIA [on tour], then had to be checked into a psych ward. It was truly a clarifying moment for Kim, because she realized she was handling everything on her own — and that she was strong enough to deal with it. She realized she'd been alone in this marriage for a very long time.”

Now she wants to make it official. "Being with Kanye made her feel suffocated for so long because she always had to tiptoe around his mood swings. She felt as if she was constantly walking on eggshells," says the Kim insider. Even Kanye's over-the-top gestures on birthdays and holidays — the jewelry, the wall of flowers, the orchestra in her living room — started to feel like a big charade. "Kanye loved the public image of Kim," explains the Kim insider, "but not Kim for the person she was.”

Kim wants her happily-ever-after. "She survived the disastrous marriage to Kris Humphries [whom she left after 72 days], so she can get through this. She has no other choice. It's been hell," says the Kim insider. "And Kim is convinced her fairy-tale ending is still out there. She won't stop until she gets it.” ■

Rob's Getting a Dating Reality Show?!

His relationship with Blac Chyna is over, but Rob Kardashian, 30, isn't giving up on love. Mom Kris Jenner, 61, "is in talks with execs about getting Rob his own dating show called Rob's Romance," says an insider. "It's going to have a similar vibe to The Bachelor. He'll wine and dine some of the girls at fancy celebrity hangouts, but others will be taken to fast-food restaurants like Taco Bell and Burger King. Kris wants to make sure Rob meets someone who loves him for him."

At home with their two children, Kate Middleton wasn't the least bit amused. "She feels humiliated. No wife likes to see pictures and videos of her husband frolicking and flirting with younger sexy women, but it's 10 times worse for Kate because she knows the whole world knows about it," the friend tells In Touch. "She expected him to do some serious skiing, have a few drinks with his mates and go to bed. He wasn't supposed to be spending time with women. William abused Kate's trust."

who had also been photographed enjoying a boozy lunch with Sophie and her English friend, nightclub waitress Rosie Peate, 30, during his four-day getaway. "He explained it all away by saying they just happened to be in the same mountain-top restaurant, and he was just being friendly. William assured Kate nothing happened," says the friend. But he still looked suspicious by not confessing to his wife about his wild behavior before the incriminating evidence made the front pages of the British papers. "The whole episode had to be dragged out of him," says the friend. "And the fact that he wanted to party and go a bit off the rails shows he's got a few issues. Things are frosty between them."

The public backlash was even more severe. "Prince William dirty dances with two beauties," blared The Sun, while The Daily Mail asked, "How could William embarrass Kate so publicly?" Adding to the scandal is what William wasn't doing during his headline-making getaway. He's facing criticism for skipping Commonwealth Day celebrations on March 13 (he flew home later that day) and inspired outrage when it was revealed he's carried out royal duties for only 13 days this year while his 90-year-old grandmother, the queen, has worked 24 days. Meanwhile, little brother Harry — once deservedly dubbed the "Party Prince" — carried out six royal jobs just while William was in Switzerland. "William has managed to make Harry look like the sensible and hard-working younger royal," marvels a palace courtier, adding that the future king's behavior could potentially damage the monarchy itself. "By enjoying the privileges, frolicking with blondes and picking and choosing such duties as meets his fancy, he could turn the public against them."

And not just the public. "Kate will stick by him, but this will take a bit of getting over," says the friend. "William needs to wise up, both as a royal and a dad." ■

"I can empathize with his situation," Casey said in a recent interview, noting that she has become fascinated with O.J.'s case.

Casey & O.J.: THE REALITY SHOW!

Casey Anthony's reality TV dreams may be coming true — with O.J. Simpson. "They're in talks to do a joint docudrama," a source tells In Touch, explaining that producers came up with the idea after Casey admitted to feeling a kinship with O.J. in a recent interview. (Casey also admitted to an In Touch editor via a string of direct messages that she wants to do a reality show.) "One network has expressed interest in doing an in-depth docudrama featuring both O.J. and Casey. It will give viewers the inside story on the aftermath of living with the horrible crimes they were ultimately acquitted of." O.J., 69, who was accused of the 1994 killings of his ex wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and Ron Goldman, thinks it's a great idea. "He is beyond thrilled with the opportunity being pitched," says the source, adding that he thinks the former party girl, 31 — who was acquitted almost six years ago of killing her 2-year-old daughter, Caylee — "is hot." But there's one major roadblock standing in the way: O.J. is currently serving 33 years behind bars at Nevada's Lovelock Correctional Center for a 2007 armed robbery and kidnapping incident in Las Vegas. "In October a parole board will decide if he will be released early," says the source. In the meantime, "he's putting Casey on his visitor list, and is even willing to pay for her to visit."

KRIS GAINS 50 LBS!

Kris Jenner is in panic mode. "She keeps gaining weight," says a source, adding that the momager, 61, used to be a control freak when it came to her exercise regimen. "She had a personal trainer and would go to the gym every morning." But now that all of her kids have left the house, she and boyfriend Corey Gamble "will often stay up late watching TV and binge-eating takeout food. They also sleep in instead of hitting the gym." It's taking a toll on her body. Kris, who's 5-foot-6, "appears to have gone from 140 pounds to around 190 pounds," nutrition expert Dr. Fred Pescatore, author of The A-List Diet, tells In Touch. "It's not healthy to gain that much weight in one year. Weight gain in a woman Kris' age increases the risk for heart disease and diabetes." Kris blames Corey, 36. "She says he's the reason she has let herself go, because he's an enabler," adds the source. "They've been arguing nonstop over it." Corey keeps telling her that he loves her new curves, but Kris isn't listening. "She hates feeling fat. She knows she needs to get her act together."

Neighbors said they heard two gunshots ring out before seeing the car (owned by Kim's son, Chris, left) go up in flames.

KIM D'S WORLD ROCKED BY DOUBLE MURDER

Kim DePaola's latest drama is way too real. On March 17, the Real Housewives of New Jersey star's car was found torched – with two badly burned bodies inside – in Paterson, N.J. Both victims had been shot in the head. “For four hours, Kim thought her son was dead,” says a close friend of Kim’s. The car was regularly driven by Kim’s son, Chris, 28, but it turns out he was out of town when the incident occurred. The last known person to drive the car, an Audi S

Line, was Aaron Anderson, a friend of Chris’ who drove him to the airport on March 15 and was missing in the days following the incident. “It was a personal vendetta the shooter had with one of the boys who was murdered. It’s not gang-related or Mafia-related,” insists the friend. Kim’s friend Tia Maria, owner of Events by Tia Maria, tells In Touch that Kim, 56 “will likely set up a charity or something like that. She’s going to make it into something positive.”

“Alex is acting like an alpha male,” says an insider.

A-ROD TO J. LO: SEX UP YOUR WARDROBE!

Uh-oh! It’s been less than a month since Jennifer Lopez and Alex Rodriguez went public with their romance, but A-Rod, 41, “is already starting to make suggestions about how she should dress,” says an insider. Though the singer-actress often steps out in sexy, skintight outfits, “At home she likes to wear loose clothes. But Alex has made it clear that he loves her in very skimpy outfits with a lot of skin showing.” Surprisingly, J. Lo, 47, has been happy to comply. “She’s fallen hard for Alex,” adds the insider, “and wants to make him happy.”

“There was screaming, there was crying, there was a walk-off,” Kim’s sister Kyle tells In Touch.

MOST EXPLOSIVE REUNION EVER

Reunions for The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills are known to get crazy. But the show’s upcoming Season 7 special takes things to a whole new level. “It was the most explosive ever,” says a source, adding that things turned nasty when Lisa Rinna (above, left), 53, attacked Kim Richards (right), 52. “Lisa accused Kim of being a drunk, and it resulted in a huge screaming match.” The fight got so intense that producers had to stop filming. “It took about 45 minutes for everyone to calm down.” It was shocking, even for host Andy Cohen, 48. “This reunion,” he tells In Touch, “was a doozy!”

DYNAMIC DUO

"What we have is so magical," Timbaland says of his friend and frequent musical collaborator Justin Timberlake (performing together in 2013).

I'm Always Looking for the Next Justin Timberlake

The legendary producer is on the hunt for a new pop phenomenon

From Madonna to Rihanna to Jay Z, for more than 20 years, Tim “Timbaland” Mosley has worked with everyone who’s anyone in the music industry. But the producer-rapper-DJ-songwriter’s most famous collaboration is his studio work with Justin Timberlake, which began in 2002 and has netted them two Grammy Awards together and more than 26 million albums sold. Now Timbaland, 45, is trying to find the next big thing on the Lifetime competition series The Pop Game. “Sometimes you can just tell who’s got it,” he says of identifying musical talent. “Sometimes I can pick it out right away.” Timbaland, who split from wife Monique in 2015, opens up to In Touch’s Diana Cooper about the star quality you can’t teach, his 9-year-old daughter Reign’s uncanny musical instincts and his surprising secret talent.

With so many talented singers out there, what separates the ones who can become true pop stars?

T: If you can sing and dance, that’s cool, but you need the drive. These days, young people all think they’re stars because of social media, but if they want to be bigger than that, they have to have the drive.

How did you come up with the concept for this show?

T: It’s something that I always wanted to do. I’m always looking for an artist with a different sound.

What advice do you give the young artists about having a lasting career in this industry?

T: Just be humble, know who you are and have a great team around you.

You were the executive music producer for the hit Fox show Empire in 2015. Would you ever go back?

T: Whatever’s called for, I’m always there for [the show’s creator] Lee [Daniels] and whatever he needs.

You worked with Missy Elliott on a new song. What was it like working with her again?

T: Same as always. She’s just cool and funny. Nothing changes when you’re family.

What about Justin, are you guys working on anything new?

T: I can’t talk about it, but you will see!

Are you still tight?

T: Yes. Always!

Clearly you work a lot, but what do you like to do when you aren’t in the studio?

T: I like to read books and work out and watch movies. I like deep films that make me think; Arrival is one of my favorite movies right now.

We heard you brought your daughter, Reign, to the set of The Pop Game with you. What was that like?

T: Reign is the better version of me. She has the gift of great taste. She saw all of the contestants, and she was like, “This person is dope,” or, “They need to work on this.” And she was dead-on. I would just be looking at her amazed.

Do you see her having a music career down the road?

T: Definitely. She’s going to run a company, she’s going to pick artists. She’s going to be something big! ■

CARA DELEVINGNE, 24

Sometimes bedhead can be sexy, but other times it just looks messy. Sorry, Cara: This just-rolled-out-bed coif falls into the latter category!

KALEY CUOCO, 31

There's no reason to get dolled up for the gym, but maybe a bun would work better than this free-flying bird's nest of a ponytail, Kaley?

▲ RAVEN-SYMONÉ, 31

We appreciate that the TV personality loves experimenting with her tresses, but this slicked-back fauxhawk gives her a bit of an alienesque vibe.

Bejeweled 'Dos: Slay

Dazzling strand accessories are taking center stage, but for some celebs, Hollywood is having a major #GlamGirl moment, with stars dotting their updos with standout extras. "After a while things can feel a bit boring no matter how many twists, braids and ponytails one wears," says Kevin. Murphy hair-stylist David Cruz, who has worked with Chrissy Teigen and Blake Lively. "Adding glitzy accessories gives an updo pizzazz, plus makes the style appear a little more expensive without having to spend a lot." Cruz's key to sparkling: "Start with day-old hair, which helps keep the accessories in place so they make the most stand-out statement." And to ensure the ornate additions look chic and not chintzy, he suggests opting for either one big beautiful piece like Janelle Monáe's jeweled headband or a few small accents like Emma Watson's gilded feather-like pins. Read on for more style tips!

GILDED CROWN: EDGY ELEGANCE

"Janelle Monáe's regal crystal-dotted headband puts a fancy twist on her typically edgy style," says Cruz. Plus, it gives dazzling dimension to her pixie cut. A killer knockoff of the singer's $750 Jennifer Behr crown? The True Decadence Leaf Headband ($28, asos.com).

SHINING PINS: ROMANTIC

"Gold feather pins give Emma Watson's ethereal 'do a boost of eye-catching shine," says Cruz. To do: Make a loose French braid, twist it into a low bun, then secure the style by placing a few pins (like Fine Feather Hair Clips, $6 each, charmingcharlie.com) throughout.

or Nay?

the look is hanging by a hair

STACKS OF SILVER CHAINS: MESSY

"Getting multiple chains out of your hair is not an easy task," tweeted Laura Marano on her tangled tresses. A simple, stunning alternative? Try a clip with just two to three chains (like ASOS Occasion Faux Pearl Back & Front Hair Clip, $16, asos.com).

GOLDEN RINGS AND PINS: FUSSY

Geometric hair add-ons are on point, but thin rings and linear pins get lost in Noah Cyrus' dark hair and look more accidental than edgy. Extras with color (like Pastel Bobby Pin Set, $10, urbanoutfitters.com) would pop against locks for a fun, fab finish.

A Separation

BY KATIE KITAMURA

The Gist: After secretly separating from her unfaithful husband, a woman learns that he's now missing in this probing, provocative novel.

Notable Quotable: "Why else would a woman follow her estranged husband to another country, other than to bring an end to their separation? It was an extravagant gesture, and extravagant gestures are generally understood to be romantic, even in the context of a failed marriage."

Firefighter Adopt

BLESSED FAMILY

Marc and Beth had two sons, Parker (left) and Will, before Gracie unexpectedly came into their lives.

Marc took a picture of a newborn Gracie at the hospital after he helped her mother give birth to her in the back of an ambulance.

s Baby He Saved!

After he helped deliver a stranger's baby in an ambulance, Marc Hadden and his family's lives changed forever

Marc Hadden and his fellow firefighters had just sat down to dinner when the call came in. "A woman was at home having abdominal pain," Marc, who is also a trained EMT, tells In Touch. When they arrived on the scene, Marc quickly realized their patient was actually pregnant and in advanced labor. Moments later, in the back of an ambulance, Marc assisted in delivering a beautiful baby girl. "I helped her take her first breath," he recalls.

He never could have imagined what would happen next. At the hospital, Marc overheard the doctor tell the nurses that the baby was going to be put up for adoption. "When I heard them talking about the mother giving up the baby, I sorta jokingly said I wanted to throw my hat into the ring," Marc, 48, tells In Touch. After talking to his wife, Beth, he did. That was five years ago. Today, that adorable baby, whom they named Gracie, is an integral part of their family. "It was truly and divinely meant to be," Beth tells In Touch. "There's no other way to explain it."

It all happened so quickly. After Marc joked about wanting to adopt Gracie, the nurses encouraged him to talk to the mother — after all, he'd just saved her life. "So I went to her and told her about me and my wife," he says. Beth, 37, had endured two high-risk pregnancies with their sons — Parker, now 14, and Will, now 13 — and doctors told her it would be too dangerous to get pregnant again, so they were already looking to adopt. Obviously something Marc said touched the birth mother because hours after he spoke with her, Beth went to see her and, Marc recalls, "The woman turned to my wife and said, 'I'd like you to have my baby.'"

Attorneys were immediately called and papers were drawn up, giving the Haddens temporary guardianship. The couple, who live in Myrtle Beach, S.C., told their ecstatic sons and parents and took Gracie home from the hospital. Four months later, the closed, private adoption was completed when the birth mom signed over parental rights.

Marc says Gracie has enhanced their lives in every way. The spirited 5-year-old loves gymnastics class and soccer games and spends "hours playing dress-up," but her favorite thing to do is to go on daddy-daughter dates to Chick-fil-A, says Marc, who now works as a plumbing superintendent.

The Haddens know how lucky they are. "I'm living the best days of my life," says Marc. "Gracie has contributed so much to all of our lives."

Ashton-Drake unveils extraterrestrial artistry!

It is reported that almost half of all alien encounters in the U.S. are with the "Roswell Greys," a name originating from the famous Roswell, New Mexico, UFO incident that occurred in 1947.

Based on these paranormal sightings, award-winning special effects artist J. Anthony Kosar and Kosart Studios worked diligently sculpting a first-of-its-kind Baby Grey affectionately known as Greyson, and he's ultra-realistic enough to win over any non-believer! At 16 inches, he's fully sculpted with four fingers and three toes on each tiny hand and foot. Crafted of soft vinyl and coated with a silky smooth finish, he's then painted by hand. Large black eyes are custom-made to replicate those documented from Roswell. You can pose his jointed arms and legs, and his head pivots to look for intelligent life. He also comes with an out-of-this-world baby blanket that's just what kind Earthlings will need to make him feel right at home!

Grab him before his parents discover he's missing!

Since this amazing baby is a first-of-its-kind, demand is sure to be quick and strong. Greyson is yours for just $99.99*, payable in four installments of $24.99 each. The doll includes a special Certificate of Authenticity, and is backed by our 365-day guarantee, so there's no risk. Don't miss out — order today!

Ever Notice?!

RAINING QUEENS

This stormy Scandal promo ad pays apparent homage to Rihanna's classic video for "Umbrella."

Rihanna & Olivia Pope Are Twinning!

The singer and the Scandal character share the same moves

It's no wonder why Scandal's Olivia Pope (played by Kerry Washington) is one of Rihanna's favorite TV characters. Both women are powerful, stylish and love their wine. (Although it's hard to imagine crisis manager Olivia ever singing the lyrics "nobody text me in a crisis!") Scandal superfan Rihanna even has a standing invite from Kerry to recreate her favorite scenes on-set. But as you can see, RiRi is already doing a good job of imitating Olivia — and vice versa!

NEXT QUESTION

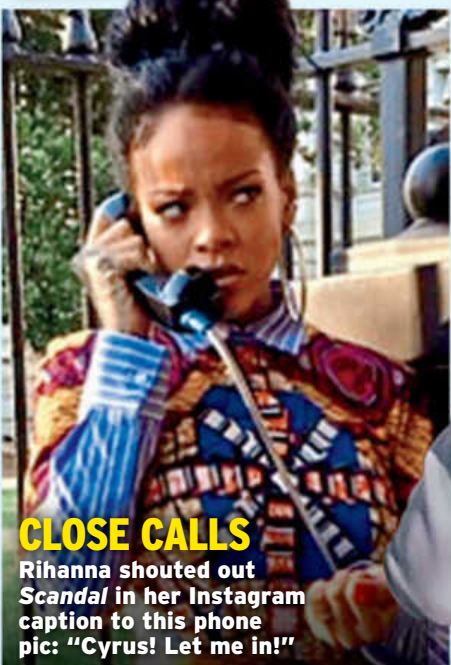

Rihanna channeled Olivia when visiting the White House pressroom in 2014.

BUTTERED UP

Popcorn is the go-to salty snack for both ladies.

CLOSE CALLS

Rihanna shouted out Scandal in her Instagram caption to this phone pic: "Cyrus! Let me in!"

DRINK IT UP

Raise your glass! Well-known wine lovers Rihanna and Olivia are the toasts of the town.

Caitlyn Would Make a Great Real Housewife

So Caitlyn Jenner is rumored to be in talks to do The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills. I'm all for this – Caitlyn wouldn't be the first in the franchise to have bought her high cheekbones! I also think RHOBH should bring back Yolanda Foster, so that (along with Caitlyn and Lisa Rinna) the cast can get competitive over which of their supermodel kids will close the Tommy Hilfiger show!

CHECK OUT Heather live at the Chicago Improv from March 31 to April 2.
