

18. Initially, source A leads source B by 90° , which is equivalent to $1/4$ wavelength. However, source A also lags behind source B since r_A is longer than r_B by 100 m , which is $100\text{ m}/400\text{ m} = 1/4$ wavelength. So the net phase difference between A and B at the detector is zero.